One of the great things about working at Accenture is that it provides our people with challenging and interesting work.

In our Consulting team, people are not only driven to develop innovative, profitable and sustainable ideas and solutions. They’re also given the chance to make these ideas a reality.

It’s about combining technology, digital and business operations expertise. Bringing strategic thinking and innovative approaches. Envisioning, designing and delivering end-to-end solutions that our clients need. Changing the way companies and governments around the world operate.

One day you’ll be brainstorming with the client. The next day you could be designing, testing or launching a new technology. It’s exciting, dynamic, game-changing.

We’re looking for people with expertise in one of five specific industry groups and have at least a Bachelor’s Degree in these relevant fields. They should have an understanding of the broad business issues and be able to analyze these issues.

Strong communication and presentation skills are also a must because this role requires a great amount of client-facing. Consulting work can be quite rewarding.

Consultants get to deepen their functional and technical capabilities, while working on meaningful projects. They get to know the clients’ business at a deeper level.

The best part is that they get to work with the innovative and passionate people who are willing to share their skills and knowledge.
