MELISSA: PERFECTING RECIPES AND BUSINESS PERFORMANCE

VIDEO TRANSCRIPT

I'm a foodie, and I love cooking for my family!

Cooking for me is like a good mix of imagination and precision.

I love experimenting with different ingredients and cooking techniques in order to get the recipe exactly right. It's a lot of work but it's worth the effort.

It's almost similar to what I am currently doing at work, where we help our clients achieve excellence in their business. I re-engineer their process by using Lean Six Sigma to fast-track revenue generation.

Lean Six Sigma is a methodology that combines process speed with quality. So, business excellence is not just about doing things faster, but doing things smarter to deliver higher quality output.

One of the most exciting things in Accenture is how we help our clients evolve and transform their business. A key part of my job is to identify those opportunities that will help clients improve their business by using new technologies like Artificial Intelligence and Robotic Process Automation.

For me, it's always exciting to bring new capabilities to the table.
