MEET MARICEL

I had always understood that Accenture was a supporter of woman in the workforce. I had read about that prior, but during my time at Accenture interacting with other fellow mothers, really understanding how they're able to balance their careers and very successful careers at that. I think the biggest thing is having time for your family and working that around your schedule.

Currently my client is a major entertainment client, we provide testing services across different platforms using various tools and methodologies trying to always incorporate the most innovative solutions for our clients.

The new IT can encompass many different dimensions, it can encompass aspects of artificial intelligence, automation, cloud transformation for example, we're a very collaborative team, so I may need for example specific guidance on cloud migration, so I know I can contact somebody who has a cloud certification or somebody that really understands infrastructure.

I love the people I work with, I love the clients I work with, I learn something new from them every single day.

My name is Maricel and I am a Technology Consulting Lead at Accenture.
