

COOLEST JOB EVER MEET HEATHER

VIDEO TRANSCRIPT

Hi my name is Heather Nowak and I am a consulting senior analyst based in Chicago. Currently I'm doing a fellowship in the Accenture Customer Innovation Network where my primary job is to design and facilitate Design Thinking workshops for clients.

Welcome to the Chicago Accenture Customer Innovation Network this is where we like to start off all of our workshops with clients to give them an overview of our space and an understanding of what our day will look,

It's 6:20 a.m and I'm heading to Detroit to help out at a workshop in the new Detroit industrial innovation center. So we just finished our workshop today in Detroit and now we are out to dinner at Chartreuse in downtown Detroit and I'm reconnecting with some of my old teammates in the ACIN.

So one of my favorite things about Accenture is all of the opportunities to meet people, on Fridays especially, it's always awesome to come in meet new people but also see people that I've worked with previously and just reconnect and honestly the people is what makes my experience at Accenture so awesome.

One of my favorite things about working locally in Chicago is that I can come home and cook at night so here is tonight's creation which is chicken creamy rigatoni.

So I've been training for a triathlon which is next weekend super excited and today I biked up here to the Baha'i temple and it's about a thirty mile round-trip so big Saturday.

So right now I'm looking for a new project and that is one of the coolest aspects of this job basically when you roll off a project you get the opportunity to look for a new role and that could be totally different than your last one and honestly it feels like I'm getting a new job every time I start a new project. And I feel like I'm able to kind of reinvent myself so it's always it's always exciting like what's gonna be next what they learn next how can I grow as a professional.
