

WELCOME FROM COLLEAGUES

VIDEO TRANSCRIPT

As you begin your career at Accenture, your strengths and notably, your resilience, will continue to play an important part in your journey. We have an incredible platform at Accenture and know that this is truly a chance to change the way the world works and lives. Every day you'll be standing with colleagues who are committed to positive change for our people, our clients and our communities. As you prepare for your start at Accenture, we want to share some advice from your new colleagues. So, here are three tips from our Accenture family:

If you are fundamentally curious, if you feel free and empowered to ask lots of questions - to learn, to grow, and to stretch yourself - we find that, that is a key differentiator for all of our top performers. They know not just what is their little piece of the project, but what is the whole project doing? What is the whole account doing? And also, how does that account fit into the broader work that we are doing across Accenture in a given portfolio or client group? So, stay curious, ask lots of questions, and learn as much as you can. Have a great summer, and reach out anytime.

My top piece of advice would be to get into the habit of asking, receiving, and giving feedback. Learning more about our strengths and our opportunities for improvement from those that we work with on a day to day basis - it's not only going to help you grow professionally, but it'll help you grow personally as well.

My tip is to always remember to reach out to connect, but also, to be a connector. Networking should not be a transactional process. And here at Accenture, is a big component of managing your career - to learn, to find out about opportunities, to give back, to stay engaged with your groups of interest and more. We believe in paying it forward, so take a moment to introduce others to people and opportunities. We encourage you to make it part of your personal brand.

We hope you have found these tips helpful and that they will contribute to your success here at Accenture. In recognition of this pivotal moment in your life, we have created a special campaign to celebrate your achievement.

Join us in the #mymedallionmeans campaign by sharing a photo or video with you and your medallion, highlighting how you celebrated graduation and what excites you most about beginning your journey at Accenture.

Share your posts via Instagram, Twitter and LinkedIn and be sure to use the hashtag #mymedallionmeans. Also, tag Accenture in your post. We're so proud of you and we can't wait to welcome you into the Accenture family. Class of 2020, you did it! Congratulations!
