Jarrah Madill
Software Engineering Analyst

My name's Jarrah Madill. I work as a Software Engineer in Canberra.

Canberra has a great social scene with so many places around to meet up with friends lots of things to do here.

On weekend I like to play hockey, bushwalking and photography.

I enjoy my role because it gives me a sense of purpose simply because I know the application I work on is critical.

The work I do with the team, and the company is quite intense sometimes but it's definitely enjoyable knowing when a situation happens, you know how to handle it.

The best thing about working at Accenture is the diversity. You can also work outside your project and help on committees such as Pride, or Disability. There's social committees within the grad groups as well.

I recently have joined the pride group. It's important for me to be part of the pride group simply as someone who's from the LGBTQ community.

Pride is being able to be yourself without worrying. When you're working with colleagues from all different backgrounds, everyone is accepting and extremely supportive.

It's important to be part of a company that understands you and understands where you're coming from.

Come work at the heart of change.
