

KURT: WHEN YOUR CAREER PLAN TAKES AN UNEXPECTED TURN

VIDEO TRANSCRIPT

Kurt: I'm Katrina Marie and I'm a Nurse Clinician Senior Analyst at Accenture.

Why did you take up Nursing?

Kurt: Actually, it's my parents' choice.

During that time I didn't really know what I wanted to take up. So I said, "Why not nursing. Let's see."

My hospital experience was less than a year.

It was good at first. From the seventh month to the eleventh month, I was very burnt out.

I was very heartbroken when I found out that I was not geared for the hospital environment.

I was worried about what I would do then with my life.

What do you do at Accenture?

Kurt: At Accenture, my job is to review medical records.

The knowledge that I gained from college is very helpful – the terms, the procedures – I am able to incorporate all these in my work at Accenture. That's why I am very glad that the four years I spent in college was not put to waste.

The nursing that I love is available in the environment set-up that I also love.

What do you like about working here?

Kurt: The culture and the people.

There are no bosses. Technically, there are bosses, but they are like your colleagues – you can approach them and say "Hi, boss!" You can also dine out (with them).

I really like how it feels like family.

I found my nursing career here and I'm growing as a nurse here.

I am able to use the things I learned in college and most especially, I did not fail my parents and grandparents.

I am still the nurse they want me to be and I am still the nurse that I want myself to be.

There are other fields of nursing here in the Philippines that are unexplored yet.

I think it's the best time for you to join Accenture because we offer the best nursing career here.
