

LISTEN TO EMILY'S STORY OF WHY SHE CONTINUES TO ENJOY WORKING AT ACCENTURE

Hi my name is Emily and I'm a Senior Manager within the Melbourne office at Accenture. I work in the banking practice as a consultant with many of our banks here in Melbourne. I've been with Accenture nine years so I've got a lot of stories that I can tell you about why Accenture worked for me and why I still enjoy working at Accenture after all this time. We're looking to grow the business and I'm hoping that you'd be interested in learning more about why Accenture is a great place to work and what potentially it could mean for you. If you were to come to Accenture and work with us within banking. The work we do within banking is quite varied. It can be short term assignments with our clients or it can be longer term, multi-year engagements. As I was saying, I've been at Accenture awhile and I often think why am I still here? And I always come back to the same answer, is that Accenture during different times of my life and career has been able to give me what I have needed and wanted. So when I was first starting out at Accenture it was all about training and it was all about trouble. And luckily since it's a global company and they take, you know travel is something that is part of life at Accenture whether it be working potentially for clients within the Asian region or elsewhere.

But also within training there's always the opportunity to do training overseas and training is a big part of Accenture and when I was earlier in my career and even now it's still very important part of we're always learning there's always new skills and technologies and offerings that we're doing which are very important to always be on top of and relevant to the clients. Now I'm bit older and I have a family and Accenture is able to accommodate me with a flexible working arrangement. I work four days a week and the great thing about Accenture is that it really is a flexible working arrangement it's not just on paper it really does they practice what they preach. And it really is supported and people are very aware of my arrangements and it works really well. So if it's something that interests you definitely have a look at our careers page, have a look at any open roles within the banking practice we've got open roles across different levels of experience and yeah come and join us.
