Meet Sirisha

Growing up I loved baseball. My job as the manager of the baseball team was about helping the coaches be able to make the best decisions, building the right rosters, taking the information and building a plan. It's the same way we build teams at Accenture.

I think that there is a lot of similarities between building teams in, in sports as there are in building teams within a corporate organization in consulting. Nobody ever sits on the bench on my team.

Be yourself, make a difference.
