ALEXANDRE

Football.

Business.

Supply chain.

Hey there Alexandre, we're curious...

Question:

Wine or beer?

Alexandre:

Beer, obviously.

Question:

Greatest passion?

Alexandre:

Belgian Red Devils. I've never missed a match. Except the day after my wedding (laughing).

Question:

What do colleagues appreciate most about you at work?

Alexandre:

I like to create a good working atmosphere for myself and for my colleagues. I try to be there, to help them out. I think that's something people appreciate about me at work.

Question:

You're an expert in SAP, what does this mean exactly?

Alexandre:

I bring solutions to our clients by delivering projects end-to-end. From requirements gathering, realization, testing to deploying the solution.

Question:

What is a typical day for you?

Alexandre:

There really is no routine. I could be doing workshops, working with a team to test solutions, deploying the solution, etc. There is quite a lot of variation. Also, working at a global company I could start my calls with Asia in the morning and America towards the end of the day.

Question:

What do you like most about your job?

Alexandre:

I like the fact that after a few months you can look back and think about where you were a few months back and where you are now and see the progress that you've made. That always amazes me to see what I can do now and what I was not able to do before.

Question:

What, for you, is Accenture's greatest asset?

Alexandre:

Best people. I'm always amazed to see how we collaborate, how people help each other out, how you as an individual can help to share your knowledge with others around you.
