Be Yourself Make A Difference

Laxmi

I have always been curious about many things and sometimes I just end up taking much more than I can even handle and that's why I think it is important to work for a company that understands you about who I am and what I am.

At Accenture I work as a functional architect....I help catalyze process between business and the product teams. Weekends!.. I teach kids, I love teaching... I teach Tarkshastra because I have always believed teaching kids is the best way that you can learn so I spend about 2hours with them.

Every Saturday I spend time with them and if I am not doing any of this... I am either painting, reading or writing poetry.

I even got a chance to get my poem published in an anthology that got launched for the Bangalore poetry festival recently and even painting has been since my childhood because I remember when my whole family used to sit and watch TV or movies... I'd be sitting in one corner you know painting something and... this is how my childhood was!

The best part is that Accenture believes in who I am and supports my motto to be versatile.
