

MEET THE MINDS. NSIKAN UDOFIA

VIDEO TRANSCRIPT

Hi, I'm Nsikan and I'm a technology analyst.

So as I've been here I've worked on two different projects with two different types of teams, and it's been really great because we've got different levels of seniority, different levels of expertise, and we're really working together to bring that client-driven focus. In every project there's lots of different strengths from different team members, so you have the collaborative type like myself, you've also got more of an analytics mind, and it's really good because everybody draws strength from each other.

One of the really great things about Accenture, there's a wide range of networks to get involved in, and I think being the collaborative type of person I am, it's really great because then I get involved in these things. I am really proud to be part of the African and Caribbean network that we have here at Accenture, and I sit in the team that makes sure that the inclusion and diversity initiatives cascade down into my graduate community.

One of the highlights of my time here so far has been attending one of the Women in Tech events, and it's been really inspirational to see women who look like me who have forged careers in Accenture.
