Digital Radically
Disrupts HR
Transcript

Digital is changing how the world works. That means it's also changing how we manage work.

Employees now have the tools to define their own work experiences. And companies have the power—and the data— to spot skill gaps, help workers train themselves, and unleash talent on a global scale.

So how will you manage HR...as more and more workers manage themselves?

In the same way that marketing departments have had to become customer-centric, tomorrow's HR departments will become more employee-centric.

That means a shift in HR's strategic goals...to create new roles in the workforce, to collect and mine data, and to integrate talent solutions with individual employees' needs.
