

ACCENTURE NEW ZEALAND – FREDERIK FIERENS

VIDEO TRANSCRIPT

My name is Frederik and I am a Managing Director for Accenture New Zealand.

I am very interested with culture, traveling and discovering the world.

When I was a kid I lived in Nigeria. Living in Nigeria actually opened up my mind and my openness to other cultures, other people, other languages and other ways of living.

I started in Accenture Belgium. I worked on numerous projects abroad. In Central Europe, in the US, my last project before coming to New Zealand was in China.

When I joined Accenture, we were 60,000 people globally. Now, 15 years later we're 400,000 people.

We have full access to the whole network and all knowledge that's spread around this 400,000 people across the globe.

What I hope to bring to New Zealand with this global network of knowledge is bring experts from around the globe, from around the world into New Zealand and share the expertise they have with similar projects, similar companies in similar industries.

I think I am more what they call an entrepreneur. So, an entrepreneur within a big company. So, I like to have a challenge within Accenture where somebody says look this is something new, something we have not done before, let's give it a try.
