

WELCOME TO THE TALKING AGILITY PODCAST

PODCAST TRANSCRIPT

Welcome to Talking Agility, a podcast from Accenture. Your host is Elitsa Nacheva.

Elitsa: It is my pleasure to be your host for the duration of this series. My name is Elitsa Nacheva and I've been a management consultant with Accenture for a number of years now, part of the Financial Services Talent and Organization practice.

I'm passionate about enterprise agility and have really seen its need for my clients having worked on a number of agile transformation projects myself.

I am very excited about commencing on this podcast series and having conversations on the topics we have planned for you.

So you may ask, what is enterprise agility? It's an organization's ability to respond rapidly to change, opportunities and disruption. And you may wonder as well, why is it so important and why are we having a whole podcast series dedicated to the topic? Well it's not just financial services. All industries are experiencing disruption nowadays. Technologies like artificial intelligence and blockchain are changing everything and with this uncertainty in mind it pays to be light on your feet.

So what can you expect from the Talking Agility podcast over the next couple of months? This is going to be a series of candid conversations where we're going to explore every angle of agility with our guests. We are going to cover what it is, why it matters, why it's so elusive and, most of all, how you can achieve it.

We're looking forward to the conversation and I'm certainly looking forward to you tuning in. Thank you for listening.