

THE WORLD GOVERNMENT SUMMIT AND ACCENTURE

VIDEO TRANSCRIPT

In 2019 Accenture is again the World Government Summit knowledge partner.

In the past editions we spoke about Government as a platform and Regtech, the impact of digital technologies on the future of regulation.

This year we are going to publish a report on Femtech: how digital technologies support women's health empowerment, especially in developing countries.

Just one number: half a million women die every year in pregnancy and childbirth, 99% of them in the developing world.

Empowering women means enforcing policies that

1. improve women access to healthcare services
2. that provide women the skills and opportunities to become equal participants in society
3. that fight discriminatory social norms.

We developed an Health Empowerment Index that shows a clear correlations between health empowerment and economic growth.

And yet we believe that developing countries don't need to wait decades to tackle women health empowerment challenges.

High impact - technology enabled - policies can significantly accelerate the path toward sustainable social development.

I invite you to download our report from the World Government Summit website, learn about great stories of inclusion and share them with clients, colleagues and friends.
