

COOLEST JOB EVER MEET ARI

VIDEO TRANSCRIPT

Hi everyone my name is Ari Divisio and I'm a senior consulting analyst at Accenture.

I am sitting and having a cup of coffee before work this morning and I am based in Chicago I am on a local client so my current project is an agile analytics project so my team is working on aspects of data modelling, data integration and data visualization it all feed into the marketing and sales decisions of global brands.

My favorite part about working with such a big client is that your work affects the decisions of such a big company that everyone knows.

Looks like a beautiful day in Chicago.

I love coming to the office on Fridays because I get to come back to the Accenture communities see friends and meet new people right now we're welcoming new joiners to the Chicago office.

As part of my PMO role I work with leadership to plan and design work planning sessions which use design thinking aspect for the client.

There are two main reasons why I chose Accenture: number one is the people. Every single person who I talk to had passion in their eyes for what they do and that's really what I was looking for.

Number two is the different paths that you could choose you would do different types of work, different roles, different industries and that really creates a world of opportunity at Accenture.
