VIDEO TRANSCRIPT

At the heart of every great change
Is a great human

Rebecca Colbrook
Strategy Analyst

My name's Bec Colebrook. I'm an analyst with Accenture Strategy and I'm based in the Sydney office. At university, I studied a double degree of a bachelor of economics and a bachelor of laws.

I was attracted to Accenture strategy because of the type of work that they do, particularly in the policy space, where we look to combine data analytics, economic analysis, and strategy to solve problems, both for the private sector and the public sector.

It was really surprising initially that I could go from having an economics and law background into a profession, which I traditionally thought was quite technology or science heavy, but I found that the skills that I have are really useful in the work that we do.

In my first week, I was actually staffed straight onto a project for the Commonwealth Government, so it was really hands on from the get go.

I'm doing research and analysis on the questions we're trying to answer, which can include modeling and Excel or modeling and code.

Everyone at the firm was so welcoming, and I had help at every level, from other analysts up to Managing Director.

Being able to make change at a national and global level is really important to me just to know that I'm able to make a difference to someone else's life.

Come work at the heart of change.
