

BARBARA HARVEY INTRODUCES OUR ROLE AT THE W20

VIDEO TRANSCRIPT

I'm Barbara Harvey and I lead Accenture's research on equality, including what it takes to unlock the potential of women in our economy. As part of Accenture's role as Knowledge Partners, I've been bringing our research expertise to bear on the vital work of the W20, helping them to achieve their aim of developing recommendations that are grounded in data and evidence. And never, has data and evidence on women been more critical.

We stand at the crest of an unparalleled opportunity. The opportunity to reset economies, to reimagine the workplace. The opportunity to build back better for women.

In September, the W20 will be publishing a series of articles that we've had the privilege to support, exploring topics from the missing voices of women in decision making, to the need for equal access to digital technology. Each article will challenge you to imagine a world where women and men are equal in our economy and in family life, highlighting the actions needed now, to build back better for women.
