

MEET THE MILITARY COMMUNITY AT ACCENTURE FEDERAL SERVICES

VIDEO TRANSCRIPT

When I retired, I just happened to go to one of those top security events where they say, "If you have a clearance, just come." I went to one of those events and I actually got three callbacks. What I did was just sold myself on my soft skills, everything that I've learned in the military. I knew I had those leadership skills that a lot of companies would want.

I work with about 10 different people, many of whom are veterans. I provide the software for our program. I also work with cyber security, of whom, several of those personnel are veterans.

A lot of times when you're in the military, or when you're deployed, or when you're fighting, you're fighting for your buddies, you're fighting for the person to your left and to your right.

At AFS, we tend to have a pretty tight team, and I don't want to let my buddies down. I want to be there for my buddies and the people I work with, in order to get this job done, it is a really great organization. They do a lot of things to make sure that veterans are taken care of, and they are really actively seeking talent from all those that are veterans.

I'm actually a Force Support Squadron Commander and Accenture actually gives me quite a bit of time to travel down to Tampa, Florida to support the airmen that I'm leading. For me, it's like, I feel like I am circled by a super supportive community who really understand the importance of military service. They give me the support and time off that I need to be successful with the second career in the United States Air Force.

I think that's the best part about working with AFS. Not only are you doing things that matter to a lot of people and have a lot of impact, which is what I'm used to being in the military for 24 years but also being able to flex your time, flex your options in what you're doing, and making sure you're doing something that's important to you and not just important from an overall company perspective.

We are working on some amazing stuff. If you are a veteran and you spent time protecting America, you can still protect America today with AFS.
