EVO mobility credential

Transcript

Vodafone is a global organisation with over 80,000 employees.

EVO - Their new SAP system, EVO is transforming Vodafone's ERP processes. But the next stage was to make this mobile.

Accenture helped Vodafone deliver 3HR apps: Leave Request, Timesheet, Expenses.

The challenge?

Matt Twiley: Well Vodafone is a mobile technology company. It makes sense for us to have mobile apps for our employees to use as well as our customers to use.

Pete Marsh: Before we had the apps, always it meant that we'd have to use -- I'd have to use my laptop as someone that works remotely from the office. It would sometimes be difficult to get a connection and it ended up being quite a longwinded, laborious task.

Gabor Pongor: The applications lets you just take a photo of your receipts and then you can immediately upload it.

Matt Twiley: For leave, I know I can be on holiday, have a great time and book my next holiday and my manager can also approve it online. It's fantastic!

Lynn Dennison: What's great is like people put through timesheets on a Friday afternoon and then if I don't get around to approving it in work over the weekend I can get in and approve it on time.

Gabor Pongor: You can just go to your today EVO application on the web and retrieve all your invoices and fill in the missing information and it's done.

Pete Marsh: The new application is brilliant. It allows me to manage holidays for me as a line manager and myself as an individual, as well as keeping an eye on timesheet management and also managing expenses much more quickly and effectively. It gives me a bit of time back too.

Lynn Dennison: The fact that we can give employees access to do something on their device that's outside the building or in the building or anywhere that they want to go, I think it's a great advocate for the type of industry and business that we are in, and it shows the flexibility and diversity and innovation that we have as an organisation.

Neil Brown: Vodafone's done this very well. It's flexible, it's reliable and it means I can get my time back to use on other things.

Mark Chase: I was doing it with a client the other day; I was just in a restaurant taking a photo copy of the receipt. They wanted to know what it was about. They were blown away with just how simple it was.
