How can I pick one thing that I love about what I do?

(Laughing)

The unexpected I would say. The unexpected.

I'm able to learn new things every day. And follow my passions and what I'm interested in.

You can learn and develop and grow in ways that you never expected.

You're with really smart people who understand your language.

I think what I love best about what I do is that it actually has the potential to change the world.

Accenture is a place where I can innovate. Accenture is a place where I've been able to take what I love doing, which is creating – to the next level.

I think the impact you are able to provide is pretty amazing.

Access to big clients and being able to work on big projects where we can actually do real innovation.

We have really dynamic clients, we have dynamic resources, we have dynamic people.

Accenture allows you to work across many different industries.

It's amazing how you work with so many different personalities.

Every day I'm working with different people, I'm working on different challenges.

My internship has nothing to do with getting coffee or making copies. I have a very hands-on internship.

Well I think the question I would have is: What do you want to do? Because you can do whatever it is you want to do.

You should be thinking about what you haven't learned yet. And how you want to learn it. And how you want to grow.

If you want adventure, if you want the ability to travel and see the world, if you want to impact companies big and small, if you want to play around with robotics, if you want to work in advanced innovation labs.

When I had my first interview, it was so comfortable. I felt very welcomed.

Some places allow you to really make it what you want so that you can get the most out of it, and that's exactly how it has been for me at Accenture.

The opportunity to work on these day-to-day, life transforming things that are happening around you...instead of being on the sidelines.

They care about who you are instead of what you are.

We are still learning what it means to live in a very digitally-advanced, technology-driven world that depends on innovation. But if you want to figure it out, come play.
