Molly Bauch, Technology Strategy Manager, Accenture

Molly Bauch: We are here today to talk about the 12th Annual International Women’s Day. It is a day where Accenture comes together globally, coast-to-coast, continent-to-continent, to talk about how we close the gender gap. And the theme is Greater Than. So we’re going to be asking folks what does Greater Than mean for Accenture? From a macro perspective it means what we can do as a company to deliver extra value, to push the needle for women’s voices.

From a micro perspective, it means what we can do as professionals on our teams, within our communities of practice, within our work, to deliver that value.

So we’re going to have a conversation. Come with us. It should be great.

What does the day mean for Accenture, for you?

Lisa Mitnick, Managing Director, Accenture Digital and International Women’s Day Executive Sponsor - DC

Lisa Mitnick: It’s all about women’s empowerment. It’s all about women’s empowerment. It’s so exciting to have all these women here celebrating women, equality, gender equality and, you know, when you invest in women’s education, it really helps everyone.

Molly Bauch: What do you want us to take away and bring back to Accenture?

Lisa Mitnick: Have impact. Don’t just focus on yourself or your work, but really think about what you can do for others. You can really make a difference and it doesn’t have to be in some developing country.
We have people that need help right away; whether it’s volunteering for a KIPP D.C. event or some other non-profit in the area, or just getting involved at your kid’s school.

Scott Selby, Management Consulting Senior Manager, Accenture

Scott Selby: I think the Ambassador’s presentation resonated with me in terms of her journey line and impacting, influencing change based on having a different equation to the solution.

Keelyn Henderson, Business Strategy Manager, Accenture

Keelyn Henderson: Mindfulness really is kind of key to be not only a healthy person, but a healthy professional as well.

Benny Lorenzo, Business Technology & Delivery Manager, Accenture

Benny Lorenzo: I think it’s about getting more involved and understanding your personnel, not only on gender basis, but on every single form of diversity that exists.

Marley Bautista, Management Consulting Manager, Accenture

Marley Bautista: When you’re climbing, also be sure to lift others.

Martha Mukundwi, Business Process Delivery Consultant, Accenture

Martha Mukundwi: When I go back to the office, the client that I’m working with, I’m going to make sure that I talk with confidence and connection with my audience.

Edidiong Ekasi-Otu, Technology Consulting Senior Analyst, Accenture

Edidiong Ekasi-Otu: You have to pay it forward.

Molly Bauch: So, today, we heard some great messages about paying it forward, being Greater Than, about having more confidence and being a mentor to others. If you’d like to share your story about what you’re doing being Greater Than, take a one-minute video and post it to Accenture Stream or follow the IWD 2016 Circle. Take time to pay it forward in your communities, on your client site and for the firm. We look forward to hearing from you. We hope you enjoy this video. From Washington, D.C., this is Molly Bauch with AFS TV.

All: Greater Than.
