What do US students think about AI?

Vincent – Winslow, AZ

I feel that it can bring a lot of benefits to the student body as well as instructors and other people that are on campus by giving personalized human-like abilities to machines which allow things to become more efficient.

Vivian – Evanston, IL

I would say AI would be the most helpful in classroom settings in which they rely a lot on virtual teaching or online courses. People who take those types of classes have unpredictable schedules and therefore may not have someone to answer their questions on a regular basis.

Noble – Saint Clairsville, OH

It could be used as a help adviser for students, you know what I mean? Automate the basics, like grading, alert teachers or professors to student performance issues, it could be used as a tutor system to present the core theory in any learning process, it could monitor the students' level of responsiveness.

Atarah – Chicago, IL

It can be used as a way to keep the student informed about their classes automatically, automatically send notifications and updates about class cancellations, homework assignments, things of that nature, already put in calendar dates of when things are due or when events are coming on campus.

Alex – Newport Beach, CA

As a student, sometimes I really need help finding an answer. And most adults and teachers want you to look in a book, or not use the technology available for you, but I say that if we have the technology at our fingertips, why shouldn't I be able to ask Alexa for the answer? So yeah, I'm really comfortable with it. I really would like to see Artificial Intelligence be used on school campuses.
