

Accenture Industry X.0 Video Transcript

Speaker Hi, my name is Lehel and I've been with Accenture for seven years now. I'm a mobile software engineer and business analyst, working in the field of IoT and IIoT.

I believe in the idea that life begins where the comfort zone ends and this is also reflected by the hobbies that I practice, like paragliding, rock and ice climbing and mountaineering. In these hobbies, I can push myself to the limit, each and every time.

What I love the most about my job is that I can make an impact on the life of millions and design the future through creating the latest generation of smart products.

With Accenture, I have the possibility to live by my motto and take on really hard and challenging tasks so that I can push myself even more. Thereby I can evolve not just technically, but also as a person.

The company offers flexible working hours that I can use to group my work and make some more free time for my hobbies to be able to practice them when the conditions are best.

If you do not only want to keep up with the latest trends, but you want to shape them, then here is your place. Do not be afraid to push your limits!
