Speaker Hi, my name is Simona.

I'm a front-end developer at Accenture and an IoT enthusiast. I love to challenge myself both at work and in my spare time, this is one of the reasons why I practice paragliding. To me every day comes with a new challenge by taking one step further outside of my comfort zone. I'm also passionate about travelling, hiking, surfing, pretty much everything that involves the outdoors.

What I love most about Accenture is the flexibility offered. With each new project I was given the chance to grow and improve both my technical and soft skills. Thanks to Accenture's career counseling program I have the opportunity to choose my next project based on the direction I want to go with my career. The flexible hours allow me to make my own schedule and also follow my passion. What I like most about my job is the fact that it gives me the opportunity to work and travel at the same time. In my first year at Accenture, I was lucky enough to work in a project that required me to travel to Italy. It was an amazing experience. In Accenture I found a company that cares about me and my passion, a place where you can truly be yourself.
